Reports. The French bark Marie Alexandria, from left Bombay on 11th September, and Singapore on the 23rd September, with fine moderate Southerly winds till the 27th, when experienced strong Northerly wind and heavy sea till arrival.

port for Ningpo with general cargo on the 24th September, with light N.E. winds; on September 25th, at 6 a.m., passed Pedro Blanco, wind N.W., and increasing with heavy rain on 26th September made the Lammocks, bearing W., distance 5 miles; at 7 p.m. sudden shift to the N.W., and a gale suddenly came on the chip. and carried away the fore topsail, main topsail, fore topmast stayanil; barometer gave no warn; ing at 7 p.m., but afterwards; fell rapidly; at 10 p.m. blowing a hurricane, storm mizen staysail blew out of the bult ropes, and ship near on her beam ends, and shifting the cargo, seas making a breach over all. Sweeping the deaks of every thing; lay-to from 10 p.m. till 7 a.m. of the up for Hongkong, and arrived here on 30th.

The British steamer Bastern Isles reports left Shanghai on the 24th September. with strong N.H. breeze; on the evening of the 25th tool shelter in Bullock Harbour, there being a ter rific gale; 27th, weather moderating, proceeded bud fresh N.E. gale to Amoy, theree to Hong. long moderate winds and clear weather in or the 28th, off Ohin-chew, exchanged colours with the steamer Petho and the P. & O. steamer, both bound North; on 29th, off Lammock Islands, passed a French mail steamer, bound North enme day, 70 miles East of Hongkong, spoke N. G. bark Baltic, steering for Hongkong, un der courses, topmast and jibboom being carried away at the caps, wished to be reported.

The North German barque Peiho, from New chwang on 7th September, reports left Newchwang 7th September, bound to Amoy, Swatow, and Hongkong; had Southerly winds till the 21st, the ship's position being off Shang hai; then had N. and N.N.E. winds till 26th September, blowing a strong gale and a heavy ses, very thick and rainy; between lat, 26 and lat. 27 increasing till 27th Sept., when a com: plete burricane blew, had to lay-to, and drifted past Amoy; towards night the gale moderated. bors up for Swatow, and arrived maide on the 29th; left again on Saturday morning with an Basterly wind, which towards night wind veered to the Northward, and continued moderating till arrival yesterday in this port. On Saturday morning the Danish bark Crown Princess was going into Swatow dismasted.

The Danish 3-masted schooner Aarhuus reports left Newshwang 14th September, bound to Amoy; had Northerly winds for three days. as far as 33.40 N., after which had Southerly winds till lat. 31; from there got Northerly winds; passed Tung Ying on Sunday, 24th September, a stiff breeze, blowing at the time, and increasing to a gale; 3 a.m., next morning, bove-to under a close-reefed mainsail, and a amall sail in the mizen rigging, about 15 miles to leeward of the Ockseu Islands, there being a terrific typhoon blowing from the N.E. On Monday barometer began to rise, and wind slacked the next morning, the wind veered round to the N.W., and at noon commenced to freshen again, and by 4 o'clock the ship was laying over on her beam ends; had to cut away the fore topmast to save her from going over. bar. 3855; about 7 o'clock it suddenly mederated; and became a dead calm for half-an-hour; the wind then chopped round to E.N.E., and bar, commenced to rise fast; all Wednesday it was blowing a tremendous gale, squally, with thick rain, and on Thursday, the 28th, eighted the Lummock Islands, and hore down for Hougkong. Arrived outside on Friday, and was towed in by the Fame.

Hongkong, October 2nd, 1871

The news which we published on Saturday by telegram from Shanghai with reference to the vexed question of the Transit rasses, will doubtless cause great satisfaction among the mercantile community. The one point upon which the whole of the Treaty stipulato trace the deserters from the Audaz. Whetions depends has at last been admitted. The Pekin Government, acknowledges that and rob the ship, or whether the whole thing according to the terms of the Treaty Transit Passes free foreign imports from further inland taxes, irrespective of pwnership—that is to say, that when once the tariff duty and the transit duty have been paid; no further taxes are leviable, whether the goods are owned by Chinese or by foreigners.

Our readers will recollect that this ques them, it will become far too common in this tion arose in consequence of the Taoutsi at harbour i.s., alwaysassuming that the mate's Shanghai having endeavouted to uphold the Imperial Maritime Customs in forcing the merchants who applied for transit passes declare that the goods were bona fide their out while upon this subject, and that is the property, and to specify the name of the very bad practice on board many ships in the Chinese Hong in the interior to which they harbour of keeping scarcely any night-watch. were consigned. This begged the whole This practice-was strongly remarked upon question at issue, and the Chamber of Commerce having brought the mutter to the of a less important nature on Wednesday cognisance of the Consuls, they induced last. It appeared that the deceased (who the Taoutai to give up the proposed new seems to have fallen overboard) was on duty system for assuing passes pending a reference of the matter to Pekin, and the decision now time during which very few men could be as telegraphed is the result of that reference. It would be dangerous to onter into too in this harbour. On the Audaz, it appears claborate a speculation on the bearing of that before the poisoning one of the officers the question on a short telegraphic sumused to take the night-watch, and the way in mary; but, if we, are correct in assuming which he kept it was, deliberately to plant that the Chinese Government have recoghis bed on the deck, to occupy it, and to go nised the force of the clauses in the treaty to sleep. There ought to be some Harbour to be to exempt all foreign goods through. regulation to enforce night watches on board out Chiua from inland taxation on the every ship in harbour, and the Water Police payment of the tariff and transit-dues. should have regular patrol duty to keep the and to be willing to recognise this principle night watchmen on the alert. without qualification, one great step has been obtained. It is the latter point that is of the greatest importance. In the negotia. tions with Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOUR they admitted the principle, but pleaded difficulty in carrying it out, ultimately inducing him to give up the privilege in fall but treaty port provinces, in consideration of their promising that it should be carried out in the latter. It will be very satisfactory to find, as we trust to be the case, that they have now expressed their willingness to recognise the principle in its integrity; but until details of the news arrive, it flooded. would be premature to be too subguine. as it is not impossible that while recogmising the principle they may, though perhaps in a less palpable form, repeat the maneuvre by which Sir Rutherford was so completely entrapped, of suggesting terms for carrying it out such as rendered it entirely abortive. We trust, however, sinat a Coroner's inquest, admits, so far as the circumstances have come to light, of only the most complicated explanation, if we may use the expression. If it is true that, as the jury found, some one murdered the mate who died from the effects of the poisoned water, then that some one attempted to murder all on carry it out were evidently carefully planned and executed with no little skill. Mrs. Siddons' Fires Study of Lady Machath It was my custom to study my characters at night, when all the demestic cares and business of the day were over. On the night preceding that in which I was to appear in this part for the first time, I shut myself up as usual, when all the family were retired, and commenced my atudy of Lady Macbeth. As the character is very short, I thought I should soon accomplish Being then only twenty years of age, I believed, as many others do believe, that little more was necessary than to get the words into my head, for the necessity of discrimination, and the development of character, at that time of my life, had scarcely entered into my imagination, But to proceed. I went on with tolerable composure, in the silence of the night, (a night I never can forget,) till I came to the assassination scene, when the barrors of the scene rose to a degree that made it imnossible for me to get farther. I snatched up my candle, and hurried out of the room in a paroxysm of terror. My dress was of silk, and the rustling of it as I ascended the stairs to go to bed, seemed to my panic-struck fancy likethe movement of a spectre pursuing me. last I reached my chamber, where I found my husband fast asleep. I clapt my candlestick down upon the table, without the power of putting the candle out, and I threw myself on my bed, without daring to stay even to take off my clothes. At peep of day I rose to resume my task; but so little did I know of my part when I appeared at night, that my shame and nowfusion cured me of procrastinating business for the remainder of my life."-The Kembles. Laudlocked Jalmon. Among the objects of great interest to American sportsmen and those prosecuting inquiries in regard to the food fishes of the country are the so-called "landlocked salmon," found in Maine and elsewbere, and about which there has been much diversity of opinion. These are known especially as inhabiting Schago Lake and its streams, some tributuries of the Penobscot, the lakes in the neighbourhood of Ellsworth, and the Schoodic lakes at the head of a branch of the St. Croix River. ... This fish has been actually described as a distinet species-from Sebirgo Lake as Salmo schago; and from near Ellsworth, Maine, as S. gloveri; the Schoodie fish being; we believe, without any specific appellation, unless it be 8. hardinii, as named by Dr. Gunther. Whether this fish be really a "landlocked salmon"that is to say a true sea salmon that has changed its habits to such an extent as to dwell permanently in fresh waters—is the subject of inquiry on the part of Mr. Livingstone Stone, who is rather inclined to take ground in favour of a specific difference. He finds, as might be supposed, that there is reason for referring the landlocked salmon, whether of three varieties or only of one, to the brook trout, the difference in the size of the scales. the dark apots instead of red, the shape of the head, and many other points, being each as to distinguish them. On the other hand, the close relationship to the sea salmon is shewn in the character of the scales and spots just referred to, in the development of a conical tusk in the lower jaw, in the similarity of the parrs to the sulmon parrs of same size, and the great size of the oggs, equal in this respect to those of the anlmon; in the form of the yolk sac, which is clongated like that of the salmon, metead of being rounded like that of the trout; in their ascending streams at night; in the short period of spawning; and in spawning at night and lying quiet during the day, the reverse being the babit of the trout, which spawes during the day and liesquiet at night. The relation is, therefore, much moreolose to the true salmon; and the remaining question is as to whether it be really the same as the true sea salmon or not. Mr. Stone, however, thinks the difference in the number of eggs of the Sebago salmon, as he calls it, and thes of the sea salmon, is a very important point. Thus, while the latter produces from nine to fifteen thousand eggs per season, or an average of about one thousand to each pound in weight of one-third the weight, averages only siz hundred discharged with a caution against accepting the fish, the landlockedsalmon, although of about 1 to the pound. Furthermore, there is not now, nor, has there ever been, anything to prevent these so called "landlocked salmon" from going to charged. the sea whenever they preferred; and the fact that they do not migrate is considered by Mr. Stone as atrong proof that they never possessed are on his shoulder, was far upon his way. That night he would bring nothing bome, but the interest had been paid for two or three months. Then, when we were quiet again, one fine morning Robin would come tapping at the window! People talk of diseases, which est one's heart out, and dry up one's blood, but the fatal malady of the poor is this borrowing at usurious interest. Their marderers are the panrers, the men who, with an appearance of coming to their assistance, live upon them so long as they are above ground. No words could tell you what my paronts suffered at the hands of this Robin. They had not a moment's rest, they could not elcep, they graw old with trouble, and the only consolution they had was in the thought that if one of their sons should draw a good number in the militia, they might sell him, and pay off the debt. We were six, four boys and two girls: Nicholas, Liabeth, myself, Claude, Mathurine, and little Stephen, a deformed, pale, delicate little fellow, whom the people about Baraques called "the little dack," because he waddled about on his poor lame legs. All the others were strong and healthy. Our mother would look at us sometimes, and say : " Don't fret so much, Jean Pierre; out of the three one must enrely win at the drawing. Then, let Robin look out. As soon as he is paid, I will split his skull with a hatobet." Only great misery could give rise to such ideas. Our father made no answer, and as for us, it seemed a matter of course to us that we should be sold; we believed ourselves to belong to our father and mother, like a herd of cattle. Great poverty makes it impossible for one to see things as they really are; and before the revolution, all parents, except the nobles and the middle class, looked upon their children as their property. This is what people call so beautiful! This is what makes them say there was more respect for father and mothers in those days.

A Lover Asleep in a Cupboard. At the Greenwich Police-court, William Stephen Waghern, a young gardener, living at Forest-hill, Sydenham, was charged with being found in a cupboard at the residence of Mr C. B. Morris, of Harmer-villas. Stanstoad-road. Lewisham, for a supposed unlawful purpose. Thinking the noise came from one of his dogs he opened the door and made a search, and on passing a cupboard in which the cook was in the habit of placing crockery, he found the sound proceeded from thence. He then opened the cupboard door, and discovered the prisoner sitting asleep at the bottom, without his boots, which could not be found. The prisoner was awakened, but he would give no account of how he came into the house, and also gave a different name and address to that he had since given when he was taken into custody.
